Introduction

Note: This introduction to Info Source is in large print to assist persons with visual disabilities.

About Info Source

Info Source: Sources of Federal Employee Information will help you, as a current or former federal employee, to locate your personal information held by the government. It will also help you to exercise your rights under the Privacy Act.

This book is a complementary volume to Info Source: Sources of Federal Government Information which contains information about the Government of Canada, its organization and its information holdings.

Info Source combines and replaces the Access Register and the Index to Personal Information, two publications you might have seen or used before.

The annual edition of Info Source is complemented by bulletins, including the Directory of Federal Government Enquiry Points.

Inside Info Source

This Info Source book has three main components:

Table of Contents

The Table of Contents is organized alphabetically by the commonly used name of the department or agency, such as Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, or Health Canada, rather than by their legal titles, Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food, or Department of Health.

Introduction

The Introduction includes:

- information about the terms used in this book, some essential points about the Privacy Act, and directions on how to locate information by using Info Source or by making a formal request under the Privacy Act;
- a listing of Access to Information and Privacy Coordinators, which is organized in the same order as the Table of Contents, gives you the address and telephone number of all Access to Information and Privacy offices; and
- the description of the Standard Banks — see definition below.

Chapters

There is one chapter for each federal government department or agency subject to the Privacy Act. Each chapter contains a description of personal information relating to current and former employees of the institution.

This book contains three types of personal information banks, as follows:

Standard Banks There are 23 Standard Banks that consist of administrative information which many government institutions maintain about their employees. Institutions may require several of these banks. They contain information about, pay and benefits, training and development, performance, etc.

Central Banks These banks are maintained by central agencies such as the Public Service Commission, Public Works and Government Services Canada, and the Treasury Board Secretariat. They include information about employees from all or several government institutions.

Particular Banks Particular Banks contain personal information about employees that is specific to the requirements of each department or agency.

Privacy Act

In its day-to-day operations, federal government departments and agencies collect personal information from almost all Canadians. The Privacy Act gives Canadian citizens and people present in Canada the right to have access to information that is held about them by the federal government. It also protects against unauthorized disclosure of personal information. In addition, it strictly controls how the government will collect, use, store, disclose and dispose of any personal information.

Most information available when you ask In many cases, you, as a federal employee, may be able to obtain your personal information from a government institution without applying under the Privacy Act. You should seek information about gaining access to your records by contacting a personnel officer at your employing institution at headquarters, or in the regions, as appropriate.

Some personal information is confidential The federal government must keep some personal information confidential under the Privacy Act, much of which relates to other people, national security or law enforcement.

How to apply

When you have decided to make a formal request under the Privacy Act, there are certain procedures to follow.

- Obtain a Personal Information Request Form at any location where Info Source is available (including the Internet — http://www.tbs-sct.gc.ca/gos-sog/infosource/Info_6/Request-Frms_e.html)
- Fill out the form and identify yourself in such a way that the government institution can verify who you are, i.e. that it is you, and not someone else, asking for your information. The more precise the information you provide, the faster your request can be answered.

- If you are currently a federal employee, send the form to the Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator in your department or agency.
- If you are a former federal employee, you should contact the National Archives of Canada, 395 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Canada, K1A 0N3, (613) 995-5138.

There is no charge to apply for information under the Privacy Act.

To change the information If you believe the information which a federal institution has on file about you is untrue or misleading, you can ask to have it corrected. Even if the department or agency does not agree to change this information, it must make a note that you have asked for the change and attach it to the file.

Safeguarding personal information The protection of your personal information and privacy is also a very important purpose of the Privacy Act. The Act states how and when the government can collect, store and dispose of personal information. It also covers specifically why and how the information can be used or given out, as well as who can use or receive it.

Giving out information The government can only disclose your information to someone else with your consent or when one or more of the criteria in the Privacy Act are met, such as to comply with a subpoena.

Turnaround time Under the law, all or most of the information you ask for should be disclosed within 30 days of receiving the request. If a time extension is required, you will be notified within the first 30 days and told why up to another 30 days may be needed.

Privacy Commissioner

The Privacy Commissioner is a representative of the people with the power to look into complaints of improper collection, use, storage, disclosure or disposal of personal information. The Privacy Commissioner can also help if you are dissatisfied with the results of your formal application or the time it has taken to see your personal information.

When the Privacy Commissioner's investigation is complete, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all of their personal information which they are entitled has the right to apply to the Federal Court – Trial Division for a review of the matter.

Using Info Source quickly and effectively

Determine the correct chapter Turn to the chapter of the department or agency you think has the information and check the personal information banks.

If you are unsure about the correct department or agency, a telephone call or letter to any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office should provide the answer.

For persons with disabilities Individuals who are unable to exercise their rights using regular procedures may obtain further assistance from any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office.

Dossier personnel d'un employé

Description : Ce fichier contient le dossier sommaire de toutes les périodes d'emploi d'une personne au sein des ministères et organismes fédéraux. Ce dossier est

conservé afin de faciliter l'administration du personnel. Les renseignements contenus dans les dossiers d'un employé peuvent être utilisés aux fins suivantes : prendre des décisions ayant trait à la dotation, aux présences et aux congés; à la rémunération et aux avantages; à la formation et au perfectionnement; à l'hygiène et à la sécurité professionnelles; aux langues officielles; à la discipline; au niveau de sécurité, et lorsque les renseignements touchant un domaine peuvent influencer sur une décision prise dans un autre domaine. Dans les cas susmentionnés, le fichier contient des renseignements succincts et connexes à des renseignements plus détaillés trouvés dans d'autres fichiers. Ces renseignements peuvent être utilisés, en autant que ce soit d'une manière conforme aux usages prévus, afin d'assurer que les mesures prises en matière de personnel au sein des ministères et organismes fédéraux soient coordonnées dans le meilleur intérêt de l'employé et de l'employeur. C'est l'organisme ou le ministère pour lequel l'employé travaille présentement qui exerce le contrôle sur le dossier personnel de ce dernier. Ce fichier renferme des renseignements concernant les caractéristiques personnelles, notamment l'âge et le sexe; le numéro d'assurance sociale; l'adresse domiciliaire; la citoyenneté; les études (diplômes, certificats et bulletins); les emplois antérieurs non gouvernementaux, le curriculum vitae et les références; l'emplacement de l'organisme ou du ministère; les nominations, les mutations, les promotions et les rétrogradations; les périodes d'emploi, notamment les stages, les mises à pied et la durée de l'emploi; la classification, notamment les numéros de poste, les groupes, les niveaux, les titres et les traitements; les pensions et les assurances, notamment les noms des bénéficiaires. On peut également y trouver, le cas échéant, des renseignements concernant le service militaire, y compris les périodes et les domaines de service; les exclusions des négociations collectives, notamment le statut d'un employé désigné et

autorisations sécuritaires. On trouve toutefois les renseignements principaux concernant ces sujets dans les autres fichiers ordinaires décrits ci-après. Il se peut que le dossier individuel de l'employé ne comprenne pas les renseignements personnels utilisés pour prendre des décisions dans les domaines susmentionnés. Catégorie de personnes : Employés de la Société. But : Ce fichier a pour but de fournir de la documentation et de donner des autorisations pour les nominations, les mutations, les promotions, les rétrogradations, la fin de l'emploi et les pensions de retraite. Usages compatibles : Identifier les décisions relatives à la dotation, aux présences et aux congés; à la rémunération et aux avantages; à la formation et au perfectionnement; à l'hygiène et à la sécurité professionnelles; aux langues officielles; à la discipline; aux autorisations sécuritaires ainsi qu'à la vérification des références professionnelles. Ces renseignements servent également à Approuvements et Services Canada, car ils facilitent le paiement des traitements; aux divers régimes d'assurance-maladie provinciaux; aux assureurs de groupe; aux syndicats (retenue des cotisations), et à Santé nationale et Bien-être social (aux fins des pensions). Normes de conservation et de destruction : Les dossiers sont gardés par l'organisme ou le ministère pour lequel travaille actuellement l'employé pour toute la durée d'emploi, plus un an. Après cette période, les renseignements sont transférés aux Archives nationales du Canada et sont gardés jusqu'à ce que l'employé ait atteint l'âge de 70 ans ou jusqu'à deux ans après le décès de l'employé; après quoi, le dossier est détruit, pourvu que deux ans se soient écoulés depuis la dernière utilisation à des fins administratives des renseignements en question. Quant aux dossiers relatifs à des mesures disciplinaires, la durée de conservation est mentionnée dans les conventions collectives pertinentes, ou elle est de trois ans suivant la date à laquelle les mesures disciplinaires ont été prises, en autant qu'aucune autre mesure disciplinaire n'ait été prise depuis. Lorsque les mesures disciplinaires ont été annulées, c'est l'organisme ou le Ministère qui voit à ce que le document touchant cette mesure soit immédiatement détruit. No. APC : 85-001

crédit du Ministère

Description : cette base de données électronique renferme, dans le Fichier maître des détenteurs de cartes de crédit du Ministère, des renseignements se rapportant aux employés du Ministère qui ont la garde de cartes de crédit commerciales, p. ex. Mastercard, American Express, etc. Les renseignements concernant les employés du Ministère sont recueillis d'après le numéro de compte de la carte de crédit, le nom du détenteur de la carte et le code d'identification de dossier personnel (CDIP). Le détenteur de carte de crédit enregistre les achats qu'il effectue pour le Ministère dans le Système financier du gouvernement (SFG). Le numéro de compte de la carte de crédit ne peut être utilisé pour entrer des achats puisque cela permettrait l'utilisation non autorisée de la carte ou des comptes. Le nom du détenteur de carte ne peut être utilisé par lui-même en raison de la possibilité de noms en double, qui pourrait mener à l'imputation de dépenses au mauvais numéro de compte. Par conséquent, le système utilise le CDIP, de concert avec le nom de l'employé, afin de vérifier et d'assurer que l'utilisateur accède et impute des dépenses au bon numéro de compte financier. Le CDIP n'est pas affiché, imprimé ou diffusé pour d'autres raisons. Catégorie de personnes : employés du ministère. But : assurer que les achats effectués par les employés du Ministère sont imputés au bon numéro de compte de carte de crédit. Usages compatibles : en cas de fraude, certains renseignements pourraient être demandés par les autorités chargées des enquêtes et divulgués à ces dernières. Normes de conservation et de destruction : les dossiers sont conservés pour un délai de six années financières et seront ensuite éliminés par le système.

Description : Ce fichier contient le dossier sommaire de toutes les périodes d'emploi d'une personne au sein du Conseil canadien des normes. Ce dossier est conservé afin de faciliter l'administration du personnel. Les renseignements contenus dans les dossiers d'un employé peuvent être utilisés aux fins suivantes : prendre des décisions ayant trait à la dotation, aux présences et aux congés; à la rémunération et aux avantages; à la formation et au perfectionnement; à l'hygiène et à la sécurité professionnelles; aux langues officielles; à la discipline; et lorsque les renseignements touchant un domaine peuvent influencer sur une décision prise dans un autre domaine. Dans les cas susmentionnés, le fichier contient des renseignements succincts et connexes à des renseignements plus détaillés trouvés dans d'autres fichiers. Ces renseignements peuvent être utilisés, autant que ce soit d'une manière conforme aux usages prévus, afin d'assurer que les mesures prises en matière de personnel au sein des ministères et organismes fédéraux soient coordonnées dans le meilleur intérêt de l'employé et de l'employeur. C'est l'organisme ou le ministère pour lequel l'employé travaille présentement qui exerce le contrôle sur le dossier personnel de ce dernier. Ce fichier renferme des renseignements concernant les caractéristiques personnelles, notamment l'âge et le sexe; le numéro d'assurance sociale; l'adresse domiciliaire; la citoyenneté; les études (diplômes, certificats et bulletins); les emplois antérieurs non gouvernementaux, le curriculum vitae et les références; l'emplACEMENT de l'organisme ou du ministère; les nominations, les mutations, les promotions et les rétrogradations; les périodes d'emploi, notamment les stages, les mises à pied et la durée de l'emploi; la classification, notamment les numéros de poste, les groupes, les niveaux, les titres et les traitements; les pensions et les assurances, notamment les noms des bénéficiaires. On peut également y trouver, le cas échéant, des renseignements concernant le service militaire, y compris les périodes et les domaines de service; les réalisations professionnelles, y compris les publications, les brevets et les primes; les passeports; la fin de l'emploi, notamment les certificats et les raisons du départ de l'employé. On trouve toutefois les renseignements principaux concernant ces sujets dans les autres fichiers ordinaires décrits ci-après. Il se peut que le dossier individuel de l'employé ne comprenne pas les renseignements personnels utilisés pour prendre des décisions dans les domaines susmentionnés. Catégorie de personnes : Employés de l'institution. But : Ce fichier a pour but de fournir de la documentation et de donner des autorisations pour les nominations, les mutations, les promotions, les rétrogradations, la fin de l'emploi et les pensions de retraite. Usages compatibles : Identifier les décisions relatives à la dotation, aux présences et aux congés; à la rémunération et aux avantages; à la formation et au perfectionnement; à l'hygiène et à la sécurité professionnelles; aux langues officielles; à la discipline, ainsi qu'à la vérification des références professionnelles. Ces renseignements servent également aux divers régimes d'assurance-maladie provinciaux; aux assurés de groupe; et à Santé nationale et Bien-être social (aux fins des pensions). Normes de conservation et de destruction : Les dossiers sont gardés par l'organisme ou le ministère pour lequel travaille actuellement l'employé pour toute la durée d'emploi, plus un an. Après cette période, les renseignements sont transférés aux Archives nationales du Canada et sont gardés jusqu'à ce que l'employé ait atteint l'âge de 70 ans ou jusqu'à deux ans après le décès de l'employé; après quoi, le dossier est détruit, pourvu que deux ans se soient écoulés depuis la dernière utilisation à des fins administratives des renseignements en question. Quant aux dossiers relatifs à des mesures disciplinaires, la durée de conservation est de trois ans suivant la date à laquelle les mesures disciplinaires ont été prises, autant qu'aucune autre mesure disciplinaire n'ait été prise depuis. Lorsque les mesures disciplinaires ont été annulées, c'est l'organisme ou le ministère qui voit à ce que le document touchant cette mesure soit immédiatement détruit. Les répondants, qui sont libres de fournir ces renseignements, indiquent leur sexe et s'ils sont autochtones, handicapés ou font partie d'une minorité visible. Le Code d'identification de dossier personnel peut servir à identifier les employés lorsque les ministères et organismes fédéraux ne peuvent pas utiliser un questionnaire anonyme ou lorsqu'il est nécessaire d'avoir ces indicateurs afin de pouvoir trouver le dossier de l'employé. Catégorie de personnes : Employés de l'institution. But : Ce fichier contient toute la documentation nécessaire à la mise en œuvre de la politique relative à l'équité en matière d'emploi pour tous les ministères et organismes fédéraux assujettis à l'annexe 1 de la Partie 1 de la Loi sur les relations de travail dans la Fonction publique.
